

Dance In The Kitchen

©Dan Beer, Jim McGregor 2004

Out of the blue I arrived home at noon, on a Monday... Nothing was planned.

I heard you come in, I smiled at your grin, took the groceries from your hand.

Stopped and stared, there were sparks in the air, we could hear the radio play

Bob Seeger was singing "We've got tonight" as we danced in the kitchen today

I took your hand grandly, led you out proudly, to the floor of our old high school gym

It was my lucky day, figured they'd all say, I don't believe she's dancing with him

Then just before they clear the floor, At least I imagined it that way

Bob Seeger was singing "We've got tonight" as we danced across the kitchen floor

CHORUS: We danced in the kitchen, it felt like a ballroom, waltzed pass the tables and chairs

We danced in the kitchen with nobody watching, just the dog and the cat's worried stares

That hour drifted away, I whispered the things I never say

The warmth of the sunshine that stolen lunch time was like the warmth of our wedding night

When on our first dance discussing our life's plan I twirled you and held you tight

So good together the start of forever, forever we'll hear music play

While Seeger was singing "We've got tonight" we danced in the kitchen today

We danced in the kitchen today